LOVE LIGHTENS LABOR.

A good wife rose from her bed one morn,
And thought with a nervous dread,
Of the pile of clothes to be washed, and more

Than a dozen of mouths to be fed,
There's the meal to get for the men in the field.

And the children to fix away
To school, and milk to be skimmed and churned.

And all to be done this day.

It had rained in the night, and all the wood
Was as wet as it could be;

There were puddings and pies to bake besides

A loaf or cake for tea;

And the day for hot, and her aching head
Throbbled wearily as she said:

"I'm a maid, know what good wives know
They would be in no haste to wed."

"Jennie, what do you think I told Ben yesterday?"

Called the farmer from the well:
And a flush crept up to his bronzed brow,
And his eyes had a hazy glow.

"It was this," said he, and coming near,
He kissed from her brow the fear;

"'Twas this," said he, "that you were the best,

And the dearest wife in town."

The farmer went back to the field, and the wife

In a smiling, absent way,
Sung snatches of tender little songs,
Said not a word for many a day.

And the pain in her head was gone, and the clothes

Were as white as the foam of the sea;
Her breast was light and her butter was sweet.

And as golden as it could be.

"Just think," the children all called in a breath,

"Tom Wood has run off to sea,
He wouldn't, I know, if he only had
As happy a home as we."

The night came down, and the good wife
smiled,

"I'm so happy, she softly said,
'Tis so sweet to labor for those we love,
It's not strange that maids will wed!"

CHRISTIANITY AMONG THE INDIANS OF NORTH AMERICA.

REV. G. A. ANDERSON

In the year 1771 the upheaving of those elements which ended in the Revolutionary war between Great Britain and the American colonies commenced. The Indians believed a strong body both parties deemed it political to ally themselves with the British. From his attachment to his late patron, Sir
Wm. Johnson, made up his mind with his warriors to adhere to his son-in-law, Col.
Guy Johnson, and when the Colonel fled to avoid American capture, Brant with his principal men followed. He was appointed the Colonel's secretary, and from that time
looked a stand in favor of the royal cause, and through all the campaigns of this deadly strife evinced his strong and sincere adherence to the British. The Six Nations lost their extensive and fertile country, now the garden of the State of New York, through this attachment. In the autumn of 1775 Brant sailed for England.
The precise object of his visit is unknown,
but it is probable the Chief thought it prudent before committing himself so far from home to actually taking the field, to consider well
the cause of "the great King," lest by an overscrupulous observance of the old covenants his people should be misled, and lead them to certain destruction. On his arrival in London he was taken to an inn called the "Swan with the two ducks." Lodgings more suitable for an "Indian King" were provided. He, however, refused to move, saying
"that the people at the inn had treated him
so kindly that he preferred to remain where he was."

Brant was much lionized while he was in England. He was courted by that celebrated worshipper of great men, Boswell; he sat
for his picture twice during this visit, once
at Boswell's request, and once for the Earl of Warwick. He usually wore European clothes, but he had with him a gorgeous costume made in Indian style, in which he appeared at court and other great occasions.

During this visit he figured as a grand masquerade ball given in his brilliant Indian costume. His novel and striking appearance attracted much observation from the ladies. In the midst of the festivities
an amusing incident happened, the Mohawk
Chief flourishing his war-club and raising the war-hoop, so alarmed his host's admirers that they fled in confusion. The British party, tumbling down stairs in the greatest confusion. This visit to England confirmed Brant in his attachment to the British Crown. Before he left he promised to lead
3,000 Indians into the field on the royal side. In the spring of 1776 he returned to America, landing secretly in the vicinity of New York, the disturbed state of the country rendered this precaution necessary.

From here he undertook the dangerous enterprise of stealing through the country to Canada.

Many efforts were used and arguments
urged to secure Brant's neutrality, or prevent his joining the royal standard. His old school master, President Benedict, sent him a long letter on this subject, to which he ingeniously replied: "I remember the pleasant times I spent under your roof, and especially the prayers and family devotions
to which I listened. One prayer in particular was so often repeated it could never be effaced from my memory, viz. That they might be able to live as good subjects to fear God and honor the King." This reply was sufficient to convince any one that Brant

was firm in his attachment to the British cause.

In the engagements in which Brant took part he stayed the hand uplifted against the feeble and helpless. In his attack on Springfield, for instance, he drove off or took prisoners all the men, but hid in safety
the women and children. On one occasion Brant returned an infant one of his warriors had carried off. With the messenger
who took back the child was a letter addressed to "the commanding officer of the rebel army," in which the Chief stated that,
"Whatever others might do he made no war
upon women and children."

On the 24th October, 1781, the last engagement of importance connected with the Revolutionary War took place. Throughout these contests the Indians proved most valuable allies, and no one can dispute the bravery of the Mohawk Chief.

When the tomahawk was buried and peace
was proclaimed, the loyal red man was not even named in the treaty made between Great Britain and the United States, while the ancient country of the Six Nations, the residence of their ancestors far beyond their earliest traditions, was included in the boundary granted to the Americans. Indians have a great sense of their own dignity
and importance; they were naturally hurt
at being overlooked in the peace treaty which they had assisted in the late war. Brant immediately exerted himself to get a home for his people, applied to the Ojibwas whose head-quarters were at the present well, Upper Canada, for a portion of their lands.
The Ojibwas in Council replied:—"Brethren, the whole country before you, before you choose a tract for yourselves and then build your wigwags and plant your corn." The Six Nations selected the Grand River tract,
which they retained the title of the country they had lost. They offered payment for it, but the Ojibwas refused compensation.
The Senecas also made an offer of a tract of land to the Mohawks in the Genesee Valley; but as Captain Brant long after said
in one of his speeches, "The Mohawks were determined to stick to their land with the English, and he would never cross the American line to look for a home." The Senecas were much disappointed at the idea of the Mohawks moving so far away from the other nations of the confederacy.

The Mohawks having left their fields and possessions after the Revolutionary war,
followed the example of many of their pale-
face brethren who sympathized with Great Britain, and fled to Canada under the leadership of their principal chiefs Brant, Thayendanegea and John Undersnotch.
Force of circumstances facilitated Brant's
prominence such as his official connection with the Johnson family and his education.
It is, however, generally believed that Captain John, who was a cousin of Brant's,
was very little inferior in talent and as much respected by the Mohawks generally as a warrior and leader. At all events, after coming to Canada these loyal red men
were welcomed by the British at Catarauqui,
Kingston, where their missionary, the Rev.
John Stuart had accompanied them. From thence the two Chiefs set out, each with a body of warriors to select a permanent place for settlement. Brant's second visit to the Grand River confirmed him in his decision
as to the beauties of the scenery in its vicinity. The Governor of Canada, to give them the land they had respectively chosen.
The grants were made, and the Mohawks
settled in their new homes.

Brant's followers going with him to the beautiful and fertile valley of the Ouse or Grand River, while the adherents of John embarked in their canoes and slowly
eventually their way to the Bay of Quinte,
where they reached the spot which their leader had selected for their permanent operations. The Mohawk Parsonage now stands, in May, 1784.

Contentment.

Once on a time an old red hen
 Went strutting 'round with pompous clucks,
 For she had little babies ten,
 A part of which were tiny ducks.
 'Tis very rare that hens,' said she,
 'Have baby ducks as well as chicks—
 But I possess, as you can see,
 Of chickens four and ducklings six !'

A season later, this old hen Appeared, still cackling of her luck,
 "I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen,
 Not one of them was a duck!
 "I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen,
 The little chicks of freey down
 "My dear, my dear, my dear,
 And consequently, cause you are!"

The following spring the old red hen
 Chink'd it up as proud as a porcupine,
 "I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen,
 Instead of chickens, as before!
 "I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen,
 As she surveyed her waddling brood,
 "Will surely do my darling a good!"

But, oh, alas! how very old!
 When gentle spring rolled round again
 The same mistakes from her head
 And children was the old red hen!
 Yet again she came here before
 And still she wore a fearful air,
 "For, I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen,
 For all these are a dreadful pair!"

I half suspect that many men
 And many, many women too,
 Could find instances from their lives
 With folage of vermillion hue,
 She ne'er presumed to take offense
 At the things that might be said,
 But meekly bowed to Providence—
 "I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen, I'm a hen!"

There are several things which affect the yield of butter from a cow of any kind. First, the food of a cow affects it; second, the manner of setting the milk, chiefly in regard to the time which it requires for the cream to rise, and third, the temperature at which cream is churned. It is, however, by many careful experiments, and by the results of long practice, that successful food helps to produce a large quantity of fat in the milk, and also that the cream is more easily separated from the milk to separate more completely from the milk, leaving less fat to be lost in the whey. In the case of the cow, therefore, or what is better for most farmers and dairymen, to accomplish, the feeding of cows of an unquestionable kind, such as mangels or sugar beets, is a very important part of the diet. A kind of meal, preferably a mixture of corn meal and coarse middlings, with pasture in the summer, and a mixture of hay or fodder, moistened with boiling water, with which the meal is mixed, is better than dry hay or fodder. Further, it has been found that the cream is more easily separated when the milk has been mixed together, and when the milk has been set for thirty-six hours, the cream is churned at the end of twenty-four or thirty-six hours more, the largest product of butter was obtained. When these periods are shorter, or longer, the loss of butter in one or the other of the settings of milk or skimmings of cream is increased. It is also found that the cream of many cows will supply enough for a churning at one milking, and so churn the cream of one milking by itself. The importance, both as to the time of churning, and the quality of the butter made. An example from the records of Houghton Farm, in this county, is of interest, and exceedingly instructive, and they accord with a great number of tests made by the writer, and are of the following nature:—At Houghton Farm, when the whole milk of a cow was churned at a temperature of sixty-two degrees, all the butter was obtained, or in one milking, and a quarter ounces from about forty pounds of milk remained in the buttermilk, and when the cream was churned at double or treble churning is manifestly impracticable in a business dairy, and is troublesome anywhere, it is very important to regard to the temperature of the churning. In the writer's dairy, the regular winter temperature was about thirty-five degrees, while the summer temperature was fifty-five degrees. The temperature at which the milk is set and the cream is kept, is of course, of great importance. The temperature of the cream is always the same. It may be thought that a few degrees in the temperature of the cream will make a great difference, but results depend upon small things in all human affairs, as well as in nature; and if a dairymen would succeed in his business, he must attend to all small things.

Fowls cannot be kept healthy without a wide range, or a supply of green food in the form of weeds. An excellent plan is, to have a sandy area provided for them, and plant a plum or dwarf pear tree. Plum trees are very little troubled by curculios, when planted in a chicken yard, and good crops of fruit are secured, barring accidents of weather at the blossoming season. The yard should be kept free of weeds. One use for the soil, while the other is growing up with green crop, as turnips, oats, peas, rape or mustard, which is acceptable to the fowls. This yard is then used, and the other is plowed and immediately sown. This keeps the ground clean, provides the fowls with food, and the troublesome curculioses known as gapes; the fatal cholera is avoided by this management; the health improved, more eggs will be laid.

Said an old timer: "I never saw a ghost, but I once made a pretty good raise where I at first thought I had found a dead man. I was prospecting down in Amador county, California. One day I went down to a creek bed, and I found a rock to kick across the stream, on the opposite bank, were the remains of three or four cabins. Some of these had almost tumbled down the bank, and I was about to go on when I found on that side. I observed that part of the fire place of a near cabin had tumbled down the bank toward the creek, and that the foot of an old gable end of the cabin was still standing. I seemed to project from beneath the stones forming the hearth of the old chimney. I thought it was strange that any man should have lived in such a place, and I was about to go on when it occurred to me that some one might have been murdered and buried under the hearth.

"Crossing the creek to the old chimney, I found the foot of the boot projecting from under a large flat stone that was still in place. I lifted the stone, and found that there was only one boot there, and no sign of a human skeleton nor bones of any kind. I then took a pan of dirt and ashes out of the old fireplace, as I had in several instances before, and found that it was empty. It was well known that the early miners were often careless and lost a good deal of fine gold by restoring it—burning it on the grate—so I did not give up. When I was passing down the bank I came to the old boat, and in passing gave it another kick. It rolled over on its side, and I saw a leg down hill and from the end poured a golden shower of nuggets and dust. At that moment I threw the dirt out of my pan and saw that the hole was empty. I then tumbled two large buckskin bags filled with gold dust. So long had the treasure lain undisturbed that the gold had become so fine with which the bags were soiled that I had rotted, and one gave way under the kicks I had bestowed upon the old boat. When all the gold had rolled out I found that it had nearly $2,000."

The Inevitable Fate of the Russian Army—
The Empire's Weakness

In the next war, against whomsoever it may be waged, writes Stenpak to the London Times: the soldiers will either be made to go on campaign or be compelled to eat adulterated bread, to put up with the stink of the trenches, to be shot or to die of hunger; wounded, they will be left to without help, without covering, and without shelter. They will push by the force of exposure and disaster, they will be forced to march barefoot (because the contractors will deliver shoes to the men after, not before, the war), and they will be told that, as long as soldiers are sure to be killed, a considerable saving will thereby be effected—not for the state, however). They will be told that the only way to get drugs is to buy them from the army, for the army are no medicines—cream of tartar, lead of guinea—the difference in price going to the pockets of those who are appointed to watch over their health and cure their ills.

But it is essential to say that an army, however numerous and courageous it may be, eaten up by evils such as these, is utterly incapable of doing anything for its country. Heroism lies the cause of the relative weakness of Russia. By raising an enormous loan, and so impervious the nation's resources, the financial difficulty may be temporarily surmounted. But against the enormous gnawing away at its heart the present regime has no remedy. The content. How can it protect the private soldier from his own chiefs and officers? It cannot. It has no means of disciplining it, it is the system, which has made them what they are that must be remodelled and removed. As things are the evil can only in the long run be remedied by a new democracy and the instructed force of the nation grows more virulent year by year, the army

The existing government has thus corrupted, little by little, the entire body social.

The autocracy is as incompatible with the safety of the state as with the peace of other nations. Though a military regime par excellence, instituted with the intention and object of waging wars of conquest, and likely to grow more warlike in proportion to its interior decomposition, the autocracy is actually the cause of the present military weakness of the state, as much as it is the cause of its extreme poverty and of the stoppage of all intellectual progress.

To reach reliable conclusions respecting the more important diseases, the experiences of many observers in different localities need to be compared. Medical book and magazines furnish comparisons to some extent, as do the frequent medical meetings, with their papers and discussions. But the end is being reached in a more systematic and complete way in England. Thus, in the case of acute pneumonia, a report has just been received by a central committee of over one thousand cases from four hundred and eighty observers. These were put in charge of a sub-committee to arrange, and to deduce from them what may be looked on as established results. The following we have gathered out of them, and here present as a

3. When it is accompanied by pneumonia is apt to be connected with bronchial and catarrhal affections, this is by no means invariable. We take this to mean that it may occur without any such connection.
4. Pneumonia often attacks more than one member of a family at a time. This we suppose, may be interpreted as infectious pneumonia, or, at least, as an infectious character of the disease.
5. When it is unusually prevalent, the rate of mortality from it is exceptionally low.
6. Defective drainage and sewer-gas pollution may both cause it, and favor its spread; but such cases are neither specially severe nor unusually frequent.
7. Alcoholic excess is often the exciting cause of it. When so caused, it is the most fatal form of the disease.
8. Next to alcoholic poison, the most unfavorable condition in which it is fatigued and mental depression.
9. The disease may be infectious; be communicated to those who are in intimate and close contact with the case, as nurses and bed-fellows. Still, it is not infectious as ordinarily seen.
10. One attack predisposes to a second attack; but the patient is likely to survive a second attack. In rare instances there is a third attack.
11. It does not tend to terminate in consumption, even when the patient belongs to a consumptive family.
12. It is rapidly and as thoroughly as others.
13. When death occurs it is most commonly on the sixth, seventh, eighth and

12. Primary pneumonia is sudden in its onset, and is due to some chill and exposure. It has all the character of an acute inflammation, with a marked tendency to spontaneous recovery. It is largely dependent on meteorological changes, such as induce other forms of lung inflammation.

The other day on an outgoing Chicago and Alton train, a chipper young woman in short dress tripped into the luxurious chair car and sat down near the centre on the shady side. She was heavily veiled and seemed to be about sixteen years old. A little later, a pert looking drummer came in by the front door and walked through the coach looking with interest at all the female passengers, and then, although there were plenty of vacant chairs, he walked up to one beside the chipper young woman and saying:

"Permit me—" sat down. He rapidly endeavored to draw her into conversation and although she did not say much, she giggled like a giddy girl on her first trip abroad and seemed much interested in the drummer.

"Going far?" he asked.

"Not very," she replied.

"Ought to have a protector, eh?"

To this she said she did not know and veered and another subject.

"I guess I'll protect you," and his arm stole around the back of her chair and rested on her shoulder.

She giggled again and leaned over toward him, and the passengers began to pity her and think she liked the drummer.

"Say, I like you," he said, drawing near-

"You mustn't," she replied, smirking.
"Oh, yes, I must. You are just as sweet as you can be. I'd like to kiss you now."
"Oh, my!" she exclaimed, but he bent down his head and kissed her through her veil, and she bent her head over and let it rest on his shoulder and he drew her closer to his side. An old man who had been watching could contain his righteous indignation no longer, and jumping up, he went over to the drummer, and taking him by the shoulder yanked him round and cried:
"Is this young woman your wife?"
"Well, I don't know as it is any of your business, sir, but I never saw her until fifteen minutes since."

"Oh, yes, well," said the giddy girl.
"Well, well," said the master, "of course I will do as you wish. But I don't want you to walk away. Don't talk to him!" The old man walked away and the hugging was resumed.
"Pretty good joke, ain't it?" said the Irishman.
"Well, I wish we were," he sighed drawing her closer.
"Would you give to have me for a wife?" she archly inquired.
"Five dollars!"
"Would you, though?"
"You bet I would!"
"All right," said she, and throwing back her veil she added: "Now fork over now!" and she handed him five dollars.
The passengers roared with relief as she took him by the ear and led him out of the coach, and the Irishman, who is my husband, said that he did not think so few minutes ago."

People in this country are often disposed to think that Socialism exists only in the colder countries. Such an impression is entirely erroneous. Socialism is one of the three forms of Socialism, of which the first and most pernicious is synonymous with communism. The communists believe in the complete abolition of all property, not only equally among the people, that all law or the regulation of marriage, schools, and society generally should be obliterated, reducing the people to a common level, from which it would be impossible to rise. The second kind of socialism is the kind advanced by the Socialists, that the state should appropriate all the means of production, in which case wage-labor would be disposed of and every one would be paid according to his needs, and there would be no cause of disability. Just as the postoffice is controlled by the state so should railroads and all forms of industry be managed by the state. The third kind of socialism is away with the incentive to wealth which is so powerful, and would reduce the people to the common level of being servants of the state. The Socialists are the cause of the outgrowth of this last, and is designed to remedy many of the obvious objections to the first two. The advocates of this propose to hold sacred the idea of liberty and equality in business and state, but would abolish all privileges and monopolies, and the right of inheritance and possession of wealth. This would call for the abolition of all laws under which compacts are incorporated, the abolition of all trusts, the abolition of all monopolies, and the increase of laws for the protection

The danger from lightning to a house is exceedingly small. The materials of which it is comprised, with the exception of metals, are bad conductors. A house, round the roof of which there is a system of water pipes reaching to the moist ground, is very safe. A lightning conductor on the highest chimney will make the safety all but perfect. The risk of personal injury from lightning is very small. On an open plain or under the branches of an isolated tree there is most danger, but even there the amount is not so great as a generally thought, though of course, it is best not to put the matter

If environment moulds a people, then the Labradorians should have strong traits. The climate, the unique features of the coast, the undisputed supremacy of the sea, the isolation, the conditions of their circumstances, indeed—are so strongly moulded as to be irresistible. The population of the coast—down to the French boundary line at Blanc Sablon—of French origin, Canadian and Asonian; the Newfoundland part of Labrador—the Strait of Belle Isle—the Atlantic coast—is inhabited by English, English-Canadian, English and Equimaux are found in the far North. The French Canadians consist of a part of them come here every spring to fish and to trade, and some of them fall to their families and small homesteads between Quebec and Gaspé; others are permanently, own little isolated establishments on the coast. The Acadians have collected in two principal settlements, Equimaux Point and Natashquan, where they have their schools, churches, and some other features of village life.

I was fortunate in being storm-stayed at a few of these French Canadian homes, and then a person able to give me some account of the winter life of the people. To begin with, the material things, the average home being a small one-story house of rough board dwelling, with two rooms and a garret, a small dock and store-house for the winter's supply of food, a storeroom for fish, and a place for drying, and two or three open outhouses. In these buildings perch like anxious waterfowl on bare rocks; they never express any emotion, and they are never in any no niche or place in the surface of the earth; you expect them to be washed or blown away, and they are. They sometimes are. For the sake of being near the grounds these shelters are generally established on some outlying island offering a seeming to be banished from the earth as far as possible seaward. They stand up gaunt, and stark, in the midst of a desert of sea and rocks.

In the best places there may be in a hollow little sand, enriched with decaying fish, where a few turnips and cabbages manure the soil. You get a gleam of hope, and then a boding; a gaunt scaffold about eighteen feet high; but it is not a gallows for the execution of any plan for keeping the frozen fish. Only a pile of straw, and of these homes is not quite so distressing as their hard surroundings, for the human hand in-doors can make its mark, when so much of the world is outside. The costumes are rough and common place; but the people are courteous and kind, and they observe well their religious rites. Their inactivity keeps them from keeping the run of the time by marking the day, and they close the door-pest. An exception to this dreariness is to be met here and there, at a light-house, or at the home of a merchant. I asked a fish-seller, a fisherman, and a fisherman to content himself in such a place.

"Well, I expect we're fools to stay here. The worst of it is, our children are growing up as ignorant as we are—just like us. I don't want to see them grow up and write. Our houses are too far apart to get the children together for school, excepting at the Piquemans Point, Natasquan, and Matapan. But I don't want to see them grow up more than once or twice a year, and that's very inconvenient about dying, for pleurisy and consumption are very headstrong. And I don't want to see them grow up and use herbs for medicines. We keep alive on pain killers and salts that the traders sell. It's a hard life, and we don't live to be very old. I don't want to see them grow up and jack-of-all-trades, you know. When we came here to live, my wife and I cut all the timber in the winter for building these houses. Then we cut the rest of the timber in the spring, and in the spring we rafted it down the river."

The socio-season of Labrador is the winter. There is no fishing then to keep people at home; cutting wood and a little hunting are the only occupations. Winter lasts about six months, and the ice on the coast of the islands and the bays are frozen over, dog teams can run up and down the coast for three hundred miles—from Mingan to Hopedale. The people are not used to carrying no provisions, for everybody keeps an open house, and the little cabins are often packed with people and dogs. The winter homes, as a rule, are back of the open houses, and the winter life is handy. Several families who fish at Whale Head live on a swamp in winter, where the tread of a man along the stiro shakes every house. The people are used to living about fifty years ago—the hospitality of the coast was such that the people on going away from home used to leave food, and sometimes even money, for the people who were to follow them; that needy travellers might eat and help themselves. But the advent of more travellers in these days has led to more caution.

It is as surprising to find all seamen superstitious; the irresistible and whimsical forces of the ocean must appear to them supernatural, and the result of some unfathomable mystery. Could events so supernatural as those told by the Ancient Mariner be so properly attributed to the influence of the sea? Behind other sea-faring men in either the number of their superstitions or in the way they repose in them. But Labrador, in his own person, has been the cause of astonishing results in this regard: for whatever region on earth offers such elemental powers, such weird scenes, such impressive hardships, such a sense of the infinite, and such a mile of road in three thousand miles of coast: I never elsewhere appreciated a wheel as a horseman, a horse as a sportsman, a dog as a hunter, a ship as a place for a horse, and their uses like him, and at the coming of a stranger. I have stated elsewhere that the Labradorers are men that those who are in need do not hesitate to break open stores and help themselves. But their most astonishing traits are their indifference to suffering and want. Labrador, however, was formerly a sea of plenty; fishing, sealing, trapping, gave the men a livelihood, and the average man could live in a few weeks the average man could catch fish enough to exchange with traders for the necessities of life. In the winter the idle away three-fourths of the year, and relieved him of any sense of responsibility. But now, ill, and far are no longer so abundant, and the men are obliged to work one hundred dollars per year to get the absolute necessities of life; and yet the govern-

and work to prevent actual starvation; and it offers free passage and work to those who will leave the coast. The lazy depend upon the industrious, the provisions are shared, and if navigation is tardy, the first sail is watched for in the spring with eagerness.—Harper's Magazine.

THEODORE

English cooks would call this "A Chapter on Sweets." "Dessert" with them is usually applied to fruits, nuts, etc. Webster defines the word thus:

"A service of pastry, fruit or sweetmeats at the close of an entertainment; the last course."

Without dwelling upon the fact that when fruit and coffee are served they follow pastry or puddings or sweets, we take advantage of the elastic definition and assume that the dessert of the family dinner is a single preparation of "sweets."

The too-universal PIR will not appear on our menu. I am tempted to wish its manufacture might soon be numbered among the lost arts.

The average pastry of our beloved land would drive a Patrick Henry to self-exile if he were obliged to eat it every day. Nor could one of a dozen inexperienced cooks manipulate puff-paste as it should be handled in order to be flaky and tender. Dexterity of motion and strength of wrist are needed for this operation such as belong

The more wholesome and daintier jellies, custards and trifles, and plain puddings we have selected from the vast variety of sweet things known to our housewives, are adapted to the powers of novices in cookery, and not unworthy the attention of adepts.

BOILED CUSTARD.

This is the base of so many nice "fancy dishes," and is itself so excellent and popular that we may properly lay the knowledge how to prepare it properly as the foundation-stone of dessert-making.

One quart of fresh, sweet milk. Five eggs. One cup of sugar. One quarter teaspoonful of salt. One teaspoonful of essence

Heat the milk to a boil in a farina kettle or in a tin pail set in a pot of boiling water. In warm weather put a bit of soda no larger than a pea in the milk. While it is heating beat the eggs in a bowl. When the milk is scalding, add the salt and sugar, and pour the hot liquid upon the eggs, stirring all the while. Beat up well and return to the inner vessel, keeping the water in the outer at a hard boil. Stir two or three times in the first five minutes; afterwards almost constantly. In a quarter of an hour it ought to be done, but of this you can only judge by close observation and

The color changes from deep to yellow the consistency to a soft richness that makes it drop slowly and heavily from the spoon and the mixture tastes like a custard instead of uncooked eggs, sugar and milk.

When you have done it right once, you recognize these things ever afterward. If underdone, the custard will be crude and watery; if overdone, it will clot on the bottom.

Take it when quite right—just at the turn—directly from the fire, and pour into a bowl to cool, before flavouring with the ess.

With a good boiled custard as the beginning we can make scores of delightful desserts. First among these we may place

CUP CUSTARD.

Fill small glasses nearly to the top with cold custard. Whip the whites of three eggs stiff. Beat in three teaspoonfuls of bright-colored current jelly, if you have it. Heap a teaspoonful of this meringue on the surface of each glassful. Set in a cold place until it goes to table.

FLOATING ISLAND.
Fill a glass bowl almost to the top with cold boiled custard and cover with a meringue made as in last receipt. Do not whip in the jelly so thoroughly as to color the frothed whites.

It is a prettier dish when the bright red specks just dot the snowy mass.

FROSTED CUSTARD.

Make a nice custard ; let it get perfectly cold, and pile on it, instead of the whipped egg, a large cupful of grated cocoanut sprinkling it on carefully, not to disturb the custard.

Eat with sponge cake.

IN INDIA.

In the throes of a social, intellectual, and religious revolution, the Indian people have to a large extent been agitated by the whirl of the agitation; but the educated, who have imbibed Western ideas through the Western press, are not so easily agitated. Intellectually, India is free; and a man may think as he likes, without much fear of persecution. Socially, India is improving; and many much-needed reforms are being introduced, and are being put into practice. Religiously, India is held in the most rigorous bondage; and we see to the man who openly disowns the gods of his fathers, and who advocates a new movement. Man fear not to criticise the beliefs of their ancestors; they show a desire for fuller knowledge of those mysteries that surround the spiritual world. They thus inquire, if they learn something of European materialism, or even of the more degraded infidelity of a generation ago. It has been said for some time, that infidel, or 'freethought,' literature has been disseminated in India, though to what extent unknown. Recently the Religious Committee of the Government of India, which has conferred upon India, has added another, in appointing a committee to investigate this matter, and pro-

The Tribune.

FRIDAY, OCT. 2, 1885.

SEVERAL changes have been made in the Dominion Cabinet during the past week. Judge Thompson, of Nova Scotia, has been appointed Minister of Justice. Hon. Mr. Pope becomes Minister of Railways, that position being vacant since the retirement of Sir Charles Tupper. He in turn is succeeded in the Department of Agriculture by Hon. Mr. Gilling, whose position of Postmaster-General is taken by Sir Alex. Campbell the former Minister of Justice. The government very adroitly provide a constituency for the new minister by purchasing Mr. Molass, the Reform member for Antigonish, with a judgeship, thus at the same time reducing the ranks of the Opposition by one member. Everything is fair in political warfare.

MONTREAL has been the scene of a serious anti-vaccination riot, the city on Tuesday being at the mercy of a mob who overpowered the inefficient police force and committed many acts of violence. A large portion of the French residents of Montreal are opposed to vaccination and resent the compulsory regulations of the board of health, and to look this unfortunate manner to show their displeasure. Although prompt measures have since been taken to prevent a repetition of the disorder by calling out the military, it is apparent that the troubles will prove most disastrous to Montreal whose trade is already suffering grievously by the presence of small-pox. Race animosities are running high at present in that city and there are grave fears that its commercial supremacy is threatened. The French element, unprogressive and ignorant, has by its numbers gained supremacy over the English speaking population, who represent the wealth and mercantile enterprise which has made Montreal the first city in the Dominion. Candidates for civic and parliamentary honors have pondered to the lowest and most ignorant classes, who have become demoralized and insolent and disposed to crush the English speaking people. Unless checked, and it is difficult to see how this can be done, it is only too evident Montreal must become another Quebec, and its trade pass away to the cities of Ontario and the west. As far as the province of Quebec is concerned, the English must go.

THE political situation in England is briefly this. The great mass of the electorate are thoroughly imbued with democratic principles. Both parties sensible of this are eager to ingratiate themselves with the masses. Lord Randolph Churchill and a considerable following have broken loose from the reactionary doctrines of the Conservative party, and are prepared to make any concessions which will gain the popular vote. Lord Salisbury is compelled to agree with his dashing young lieutenant, and has therefore thrown to the winds, as in the case of Roumella, his warlike foreign policy, and the coercive measures he formerly deemed necessary for the government of Ireland. Mr. Parnell will, it is supposed, command a solid vote of ninety home-rulers. The Conservatives have no hope of gaining a majority as a party, but with Mr. Parnell's aid count on retaining power. On the other hand Mr. Gladstone has been busy at the difficult task of reconciling the Whig and Radical element of the Liberal party and not without success. Mr. Chamberlain, the gifted leader of the Radicals, commanding, as he does, the largest wing of his party, has won the hearts of the electors of the great cities and manufacturing centres, as well as of the persecuted crofters and small tenant farmers, by his impassioned appeals for free education, church disestablishment, state aided emigration, reform of the land laws, and similar measures so well calculated to ameliorate their condition. He has moreover touched a responsive chord in the breasts of every Englishman by his patriotic utterances in favor of the unity of the empire. His views with some modifications have been wisely accepted by Mr. Gladstone and become those of the Liberal party. Scotland and Wales, and the great populous centres will undoubtedly support Mr. Chamberlain. The great struggle will be in the great English counties and boroughs where the peers and squires exert their influence. Everything depends on the votes of the lately enfranchised agricultural laborers. Will their ballots be cast to please the landlords or will they throw aside old traditions and join hands with the workmen of the towns and cities?

The Vienna "Tagblatt" receives the rumor that England is about to cede Heligoland to Germany. The possession of the island by England has long been a thorn in the side of the German Emperor, and many times asserted that friendship between the powers was out of the question so long as England retained possession of Heligoland. It is not stated what price is to be paid for the island, but it is generally believed that Germany will surrender her new colonial possessions in New Guinea in return for the cession of Heligoland.

Hon. Mr. Thompson, the new Minister of Justice, was sworn in at the capital on Saturday afternoon, the other changes in the construction of the Dominion Cabinet taking place at the same time.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE CEMETERY.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

DEAR SIR,—I see that steps are being taken by the Reeve to secure a cemetery for Deseronto and I am glad he has pushed the matter forward. In times past committees have been formed and have acted as all such worthy bodies of that kind usually do; a meeting, a talk, and then let the matter drop. This is one of the most important steps that could possibly be taken, and the men who have subscribed and taken shares will be well repaid, if not financially, at least with the gratitude of all. We hope to see the property secured, fenced, laid out in lots, and the work of beautifying going on at once. Nothing should stand in the way. Deserontians should be above the idea of going begging to Nanapan or any other place for a spot in which to bury their dead. They should be up to the time and have a graveyard.

OUR SCHOOLS.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

As I shall leave Deseronto in a few days and thus sever my connection with the Public School Board, I embrace this opportunity of calling the attention of the parents of Deseronto to the overcrowded state of the junior departments of the Public School, and to point out the fact that it is only wasting time and money to delay seating the upper school room and employing a good teacher. The education of the youth of our village is the vital question compared with which the deliberations of the Village Council sink into insignificance. This is no nonsense but an admitted fact.

Many a parent realizes this fact and laments the slow progress their children make at the school and without knowing the true causes, lay the blame on the teachers. A mother complains of the noise and bother her three or four children make and says how glad she is to get them off to school in the morning for they nearly drive her crazy. If she would follow them to school and there find the little family of between 80 or 90 for one teacher to control, let alone teach, she would say "I wonder that the asylums are not filled with school teachers."

There can be no money expended which will bring so large an interest as that expended in establishing and maintaining a good school for the young. To maintain a good school not only requires money, but also the co-operation and sympathy of each ratepayer in the section. The annual school meeting should be the most important meeting of the residents of any corporation, and the selection of trustees and teachers should have but one object in view, viz.: How can we best promote the thorough education and refinement of our children. This subject is inexhaustible, but in closing I would advise the parents of Deseronto not to be content until their school is first-class in every respect.

Yours truly,

C. E. HUBBS,

Deseronto, Oct. 1st, 1885. Sec. P. S. B.

TYNDAL'S RESERVE

From Our Own Correspondent.

Thanksgiving services will be held in All Saint's next Sabbath.

Rev. G. A. Anderson and Mrs. Featherston, were paying a short visit to Port Hope and Midland last week.

It is with regret I announce the illness of Mr. Peter Dorem; while quarrying stone recently he was seized by a severe stroke of paralysis in his left side.

The residence of Mr. James Brant now ranks itself as one to be envied, by its handsome new coat of paint.

Mrs. Lucinda Hill and her daughter Miss Lizzie, have returned home after spending a pleasant visit to Ganongswaga.

The arrival home of Miss Susan Hill after a prolonged absence gladdens the hearts of her friends and relatives. She has been in different parts of the States and even had the pleasure of spending several months in New Orleans during the late expedition.

At the residence of Mr. Jacob Brant Jr. were the scenes of Wednesday last of an occurrence the like of which, perhaps has never been heard of here. It seems he returned from Nanapan too much the worse of liquor, which soon resulted in a family fracas. Using an axe he badly injured the house and contents. He was arrested and taken to Belleville and is now serving a term of one month.

Mr. Wm. Powles and Mr. James Maracle are without a doubt the happiest men we at present know of; each is in possession of a bouncing baby boy. We wish them much joy, peace and quietness.

We have learned that services have not been held in the Mission school house for some time owing to non-attendance of the people. Also that on different occasions the pastor found the doors locked.

An enjoyable time was spent by many at the farewell party given by Mr. Elias Maracle on Tuesday night, on the occasion of the family leaving here to take up their future abode on the Grand River Reserve.

The name of Jesse Martin has been at times observed in press and especially in his private correspondence with the pre-fix "Chief" which is obviously misinterpreted. I have been requested therefore on behalf of the Chief and the Band, to inform the public in general that he is not a Chief, nor have he ever entertained the idea even of conferring that distinction upon him.

One of the features of the coming English elections will be the reappearance of Mr. John Bright, who has been practically out of politics since his retirement from the Gladstone Cabinet on his disagreement with the policy that led to the bombardment of Alexandria.

SHANNONVILLE.

From an occasional Correspondent.

On Saturday, Sept. 26th, the staid, Annie Gilbert, which had been in the church on occasion, carried the Sabbath school children of the Church of England and their friends to Massasauga Point to which their annual excursion was held. The day was spent very pleasantly by all who had the pleasure of attending. The Rev. Mr. Fraser who had the management to look after cannot be awarded too much praise for the trouble to which he went to amuse and interest the children while on board the boat and also after reaching the point. After dinner was served the afternoon was spent in foot races and boating by the children while the young gentlemen who had their sweethearts along spent their time in strolling around while old bachelors had to stand by and look on.

MELROSE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The harvest is all done at last and now threshing is the order of the day. As a rule the amount of grain is not what might be expected from the amount of straw.

People are beginning to dig their potatoes to see if they can save a few of them, as since the last heavy rains they have begun to rot. Some patches are nearly all rotting. Mr. Homer Deane, who has spent upwards of two years in Winnipeg, has just returned home. People are pleased to see him and also glad to see that the climate has agreed with him so well. He is looking fine though he has not grown much.

The young people of the Salem neighborhood intend giving an entertainment on Friday, Oct. 2nd. People are expecting a treat as there is some fine talent in that neighborhood.

MILLTOWN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Your correspondent being anxious for knowledge concerning this ancient and honorable village, one evening not long ago, undertook the arduous duty of taking the census of Milltown. Including all the suburbs, he found it to have a population of 1,000. In the palmy days of old it is said to have been the home of over 300. The number of vacant houses attest its former greatness. There are now twenty-two unoccupied houses.

Saturday's picnic to Massasauga seems to have been a pronounced success. The day was all that could be desired, and the children were fully determined to enjoy the treat of a boat ride. One little boy interviewed on his homeward trudge, reported "I'm sure I never did have such a good time."

Mr. D. Taylor and Miss Watts, of Picton, and Mr. F. Taylor and mother from Tyendinaga, were the guests of Mr. & Mrs. Thorne Carman on Sunday.

Marysville.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A party of young people from Marysville met with what might have proved a serious accident when returning from church at Richmond last Sunday morning. While going down a hill on the back of one of the tractors became unfastened, thus causing the conveyance to come down upon the heels of the horses, which, becoming frightened, threw the corner of the tractor, almost for the pleasure of the occupants. But through the timely aid of the gentlemen present the horses were secured before any injury was done beyond a severe shock to the nervous systems. Moral—Never trust a horse.

Mr. Cullane lost several geese a few nights ago. A flock of them had gathered together upon the track, and not perceiving the approach of a train, some of them were killed before they could escape. A little boy passing along next morning was heard to exclaim, "Oh, look! why nere's a goose without a head."

Miss Lyman is on a visit to her friends in Kingston.

Miss H. Sheehan and Miss K. Abrams, of Westbrook, were the guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. C. Meagher, for a few days.

Society circles have been considerably excited here over the appearance of a young lady from Toronto, who is one of the numerous heirs to the Laurence Townley estate.

READ.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The last week has been a red letter week in the history of the Catholic Church in Northern Tyendinaga, owing to the long expected visit of His Lordship Bishop Cleary and the Confirmation on Sunday last, when 246 persons were confirmed. On Friday afternoon His Lordship arrived from Erinville, and was met by a large delegation of the congregation of St. Charles in carriages, who accompanied His Lordship to the church. Having arrived at the church the Bishop made many enquiries as to the schools, &c., and announced that he would remain in the mission on Saturday, Sunday and Monday. On Saturday morning the Bishop celebrated mass at half past seven and at 9:30 the examination of the candidates for confirmation took place and lasted until the afternoon. When 246 candidates were passed. In attendance upon His Lordship were the following: Rev. Father Monseigneur Paré, Rev. Father Rev. Father Kelly, Secretary to the Bishop; Rev. Father Mackey, Marysville; Rev. Father McCarthy, Brockville; and the Rev. Father Meade, pastor.

On Sunday morning mass was celebrated at 7 o'clock by Rev. Father Kelly, by the Bishop at 7:30, and the mass for confirmation tion was celebrated by the Rev. Father Meade at 8 o'clock, after which the Sacrament of Confirmation was administered. There was an immense congregation, hundreds from all parts of the township, hundreds being unable to get into the church. The Bishop delivered an impressive address in his usual eloquent and forcible manner, in the course of which he thanked the good people of Tyendinaga for the many good things they had done and the many improvements which he had observed since his last visit three years ago. Much still remained to be done, and he knew that they were sure they would do it. On Monday at 9 o'clock there was mass, the Bishop being present, after which His Lordship blessed the New Statutes of the Cross, and delivered a discourse on the origin and history of the Catholic Doctrine, known as the Holy Way of the Cross. It was necessary for us to speak of the scholarship and theological lore of Bishop Cleary, but this was required more than a passing notice. It was eloquent, scholarly and exhaustive, full of historical facts, and replete with the most beautiful illustrations. It was one of those great efforts of a mature mind. We regret that our space forbids us giving a synopsis of it, but in fact no synopsis could do it justice, and it is necessary to hear it to appreciate it. His Lordship left on Monday afternoon for Kingston.

On the 24th ult. Mr. Hugh Herald was engaged threshing with his steam for Mr. James Meagher on the 6th con. They were threshing after dinner, when about 1 o'clock while the threshing machine was in the field the flames spread that the men in the barn had difficulty in getting out, and the last man being the last to get out. It is short time by the barn with its contents, consisting of hay and the crop of 250 acres were consumed. Connected with the barn were hog pens, sheep pen, stables and cattle sheds. The barn was one of the largest and best laid out in the township. Mr. Meagher has a very large stock and the loss of his winter's feed is a great disaster. It was with great difficulty that three teams which were in the stables were removed, and the fire spread so rapidly that the cleaner was burned before it could be removed. Mr. Meagher's loss is $2,500, covered by $1,300 insurance in the London, Montreal and Globe, leaving a total loss of $1,200.

The marriage bells are again ringing. On the 25th ult. Mr. Patrick Brennan, son of Mr. Patrick Brennan, of the 6th con., led to the hymeneal altar Miss Ella Hayes, second daughter of Mr. John Hayes, of the 6th con. The bride was attended by Miss Catherine Leary and Mr. James Brennan, late of Wisconsin, was the best man. The bride was beautifully dressed and looked her best. The wedding ceremony took place at St. Charles' Church and was performed by the Rev. Father Meade. We wish the young couple every happiness and trust that their voyage through life may be smooth and prosperous and that they may live to celebrate their golden wedding. We trust that many of our bachelors will soon follow Mr. Brennan's good example and that are long wedding guests will daily fill the recent church that tops the neighboring hill.

The regular meeting of the Township Council took place at Melrose on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Callaghan, of Campbellford, are visiting their relatives here.

Mr. Cornelius McLaughlin, of Chicago, is visiting his relatives.

Miss Barry, of Morrisburg, is on a visit to her uncle, the Rev. Father Meade. Mr. Herbert Greaves, of Belleville, has been visiting his friends in Read.

On the 27th ult. Patrick O'Hare, eldest son of the late James O'Hare, died after a short illness at the residence of his uncle, Mr. Thomas Cowan, with whom he has been living for the last three years, at the early age of 12 years and 11 months. He was to have been married to Miss Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. Thomas Cowan, with whom he has been living for the last three years, at the early age of 12 years and 11 months. He was to have been married to Miss Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. Thomas Cowan, with whom he has been living for the last three years, at the early age of 12 years and 11 months.

Mr. S. B. Mason went up to the light-house on Monday and caught twelve fine fish with a trolling line.

According to the Prescott Messenger there was discovered the other day, in one of Mr. Wiser's sheds, a hen, actually sitting on two little kittens. It was afterwards found that she had driven off the mother cat and had taken possession of the kits. When discovered the unfortunate little animals were almost famished.

The Hero and Quinte collided down the bay yesterday morning fortunately without any serious consequences. These collisions, however, should be avoided, and in this case all blame attaches to someone. We are assured that the Deseronto Navigation Company issue strict injunctions to their officers to make safety their first consideration, and that even if they have the right of way they should yield a point rather than take a risk. In the interests of the travelling public a strict investigation should be made by the Department of Marine, and the ones of the accident brought home to those responsible for it.

We doubt not a liberal response will be given to the appeal in behalf of this worthy object. The edifice is of Kingston stone, a beautiful light building of the old English parish church style. On the inside walls of the choir the shield of the coat of arms of the Rev. Mr. Forneri of Canada will be preserved on memorial tablets.

DISSATISFACTION, amounting in many cases to indignation, exists in the ranks of the young ladies of the municipality, arising from the too frequent custom of young men of the town going outside its limits to secure fair and amiable partners for life. Distant holds always look lovely, but there must be some other causes for this reprehensible custom. In the meantime the young ladies club are determined to push this new business on an extensive scale, making Deseronto their headquarters.

In the meantime the young ladies club are determined to push this new business on an extensive scale, making Deseronto their headquarters.

THE members of the H.E.S. boat club started out for a pleasant sail on the bay a week ago last Sunday. Their little craft, captained and the whole club had a narrow escape from a watery grave. One member is reported to have told his spouse that he wanted seven miles to leave before he reached shore. They have all taken a vow against Sunday sailing in future.

DISSATISFACTION, amounting in many cases to indignation, exists in the ranks of the young ladies of the municipality, arising from the too frequent custom of young men of the town going outside its limits to secure fair and amiable partners for life. Distant holds always look lovely, but there must be some other causes for this reprehensible custom. In the meantime the young ladies club are determined to push this new business on an extensive scale, making Deseronto their headquarters.

CHEAP slates and pencils at THE TRIBUNE office.

MR. JACOB MARBLE will proceed with the erection of a new fence, and thus contribute his quota to the improved appearance of Main-street.

WE regret to learn of the death of Mrs. Toker, wife of Mr. Edward J. Toker, of the village of Napawa, who died last evening at the age of 28th ult.

YOUNG Robert Norris had his hand very severely crushed on Tuesday afternoon while working on the new saw-mill at the factory. He was attended by Dr. Newton, and the patient is progressing favorably.

THE Reeve has been quite successful in his efforts to get a number of residents to take stock in the proposed cemetery. There have been numerous expressions of satisfaction at the prospect of thus securing such a desirable place for a resting place for the dead.

A BOAT race for the championship of Deseronto will take place on Saturday evening at 6:15 o'clock. The contestants are Messrs. Campbell and Hoppes, the distance one mile with a turn, and as this is the first race in the best and best boats it promises to be very exciting.

IT is suggested that we direct attention to the advantages that Deseronto offers to a live man as a good point in which to establish a business. There are a dozen good openings for different lines of business in this place for men who will look sharp and advertise.

THE school board have taken advantage of the magnificent weather of last Sunday to hold a grand field day. The hickory nuts suffered, and it is calculated that there was a loss of $100 worth of nuts. The district was pelted and battered by a crew of bustling assailants.

AN enterprising citizen in the east end is trying to drive a wedge between the sinking Artesian well, with the hopes of settling the question of the water supply in that locality. His efforts are regarded with much curiosity by residents of that district. Such enterprise surely deserves success.

AS appears by a communication school affairs are in a muddle. People are indignant at the school board's position. The schoolroom is overcrowded. Teachers are asked to do impossibilities. An excellent teacher is an immediate necessity. The board should call a public meeting. Children should not be allowed to grow up in ignorance.

WE learn from the Enterprise that at the fancy dress caradee recently held in the roller rink at Colborne, a handsome gold necklace was awarded as a prize to Miss Annie Kimmerly, of Deseronto, for being the best dressed girl present on the occasion. Our young ladies can easily hold their own in such matters with all comers.

GRIFFITH.

From an occasional Correspondent.

Again I take the opportunity of making a few comments upon different subjects, which if not interesting to the whole of your readers, may be to some.

I have changed my place of abode since I last wrote to you, but nevertheless I am still to be found within the limits of civilization. I am now engaged in the scholastic performances at Colborne, which is a beautiful little hamlet situated on the banks of the Madawaska River, in the Co. of Renfrew. Now as my time is quite limited at present, I will not undertake to give you a description of the place in this epistle, but be prepared for it in the future.

Rev. J. Reddon, Presbyterian student from Kingston, preached a very appropriate sermon last evening, being the occasion of his departure from this vineyard. He chose for his text, Philippians, chapter 27th verse. He leaves this week for Queen's College, Kingston, where he will resume his studies.

Rev. Thomas Rate, of this place, left this morning for Arnprior, to attend to business in connection with the English Church.

Mr. G. S. Smith, of Renfrew, having leased the Rate's Store, formerly occupied by Mr. G. A. Dawson, has opened up a general store of merchandise. We all take the pleasure of announcing to you that the success as he is one of those "jolly good fellows."

Mr. J. A. Yeaples and Mr. Alex McCabe, came home from a day's sport last Friday as proud as a peacock on a pump handle, having captured one of the largest deer in the bush. It weighed when dressed two hundred and fifty-four pounds.

Game is very plentiful this fall.

Shantying will be carried on to a very large extent this winter in this section; some have commenced operation already.

AUSTRALIA has some monster trees beside which our tall poplars would be mere pigmies and even California redwoods only dwarfs. One of the gum species has been recently discovered in Victoria and is over 500 feet high, or 93 feet higher than the topmost pinnacle of St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

MR. R. M. JACOB and other progressive citizens in the east and west believe that Deseronto should not have to go to the west to get what it needs. It is a thought that is worth considering.

THE view from Mr. Aylsworth's residence on the Napanee river is very fine. Having the other day to enjoy the fair prospects made were struck with the nearness of the opposite shore of the river or bay. Frederickburg appeared to be within a few rods, and it seemed as if a Cedar Mill athletic could throw a few stones across the narrow stretch of water. A few thousand dollars could throw a bridge across the same distance and prove a great public convenience to him for the people of this part of the country to wake up to the necessity for speedy means of inter-communication.

The water was too rough on Saturday evening for the race, but the oyster supper came off just the same at Leslie's popular restaurant. The spread was excellent and a pleasant company of Flour Mill and Cedar Mill athletes and others made themselves exceedingly happy as they discussed the luscious viands. The athletes were called to the race for the first time and the newspaper men breaking new records in a little game. Evans, who hails from the Niagara river, took the best story told. J. ALEXANDER BROWN, Esq., the general Agent of the Grand Trunk Railway at Deseronto Junction has been promoted to the important position of Ticket and Freight Agent at Napanee, although we were sorry to lose Mr. Brown we cannot but feel gratified at his promotion. While at the Junction as Agent Mr. Brown won "golden opinions from all sorts of people" and THE TRIBUNE desires to express to him and his amiable wife its best wishes for their health and prosperity in their new sphere.

WE received a welcome letter this other day from our good friend Mr. Peter McLAREN, of Castlewood, Dakota. Both he and family are well and prospering. They had just received the arrival of THE TRIBUNE and evidently take a deep interest in Deseronto and the people. Mr. McLaren intends soon starting in for himself in Clark County, where he has a pleasant location. He reports fine wheat and good crops in Dakota where future prospects are great. He kindly forwards a list of the Dakota crops, including at Watertown, which contains a long description of the famous "Carroll" farm on which Mr. McLaren has been employed. It has an area of 4,000 acres, of which 2,800 are under cultivation, and during the harvest just closed there was gathered of wheat 1,400 acres, with 350 acres of oats and 100 of barley. Nine binders and six seeders are used with plows and harrows in large numbers. Mr. McLaren proposes to put under cultivation not more than 3,000 acres, two-thirds of which will be operated each year while the balance will be allowed to summer fallow. He is also engaged in the erection of a stock barn 220 feet in length and 6 feet in width with underground stables, and he expects to sell from 500 to 1,000 hogs a year. The article furnishes most interesting and valuable information as to the enterprise of this Canadian, who resides at St. Catherine, but who finds it so profitable to invest his money in Dakota, that he has made such enormous strides during the past few years.

SCRIBBLING books ruled, only 5 cents at THE TRIBUNE office.

Mrs. & Miss Brown, of Deseronto Junction, were entertained by their neighbors to an oyster supper Tuesday night on the occasion of their visiting from the city.

THERE is some talk of a company being formed to build a first-class hotel and restaurant. If suitable premises could be obtained, there is no doubt that such an establishment would be a great benefit to the community, especially if a cozy reading room could be established in connection therewith.

The attention of the ladies is particularly directed to the advertisement of Miss Shaw in another column. She has reopened her dress and mantle-making rooms over the shop of Walker Bros., Main street, and having been recently studying some new methods in her profession hopes to enjoy increased patronage.

WE have received a copy of the Calendar of the Dominion Business College, Kingston, which has been printed at the Whig office. This College is now without an equal in Canada, and this year finds itself in a position to receive students from all parts of the Dominion and the United States.

Work has been busy lately changing the position of the large window the west end of St. Mark's Church which by some error of the masons had been put in the wrong place and the church was building. Several of the new stained glass windows have been put in and present a very handsome appearance. The other windows have been promised to be exceedingly attractive.

THERE has been a large exodus of our population during the past week to the various fairs at Napanee, Picton, Shannonville and other points. The general expression of opinion is that these fairs are not equal to those of former years. Except as opportunities of affairs of commerce and pleasant meetings with old friends, farmers now do little to advance the cause of agriculture, and societies will need to look about for something to serve as a substitute.

JOHN MCCULLOUGH, Esq., has entered on his duties as Dominion Commissioner of Police. As we mentioned at the time of his appointment he made an excellent impression. He has had not had to wait long for work as a number of difficult cases have been already brought before him. The Commissioner is determined to carry out the instructions of the Department to the letter, and persons found guilty of any infractions of the Indian Act may expect but little mercy.

Mrs. A. Schuster wife of the late city missionary at Belleville, has recently visited Deseronto with a view to establishing a branch mission in the town. During this week she held a meeting in one of the halls for the purpose of organizing the work. She also distributed through the village a large number of tracts and religious literature. She earnestly asks the co-operation of Christian people. She does not work for money but gives her services freely for the Master. Deseronto will give her a kindly welcome.

ON Saturday afternoon the Deseronto Cornet Band drove up to Shannonville, and a large number of troops were assembled for the fair ground, where they played a number of selections which were much appreciated by the large number of visitors present. The music was very good and entertainment to a full house. Messrs. Burtch and Bensley gave invaluable assistance. The members of the Band and the Shannonville people were alike pleased with the visit, which resulted in a nice addition to the Band Fund. Requisitions are coming in from similar visits to other villages in this district.

THE Annual Harvest Home Thanksgiving Service of St. Mark's Church was held on Sunday last, Oct. 4th. The sacred edifice was thronged with people, and the occasion was marked by various kinds of gifts, flowers, vegetables, &c., the whole presented a most pleasing and attractive appearance. The services were of a most impressive nature. Never, indeed, have we seen more taste displayed in church decoration on an occasion of this kind, and certainly the ladies and gentlemen of the congregation who assisted in the work cannot be accorded too much credit for their taste and taste. The evening they gave a concert, and the congregation in the evening being very large. Able and impressive sermons were preached on both occasions by the Rev. Mr. St. James, B. S. The services throughout were very hearty, and the rendering of Chants, Hymns, Anthems, &c., particularly good. We think St. Mark's Choir deserved great praise for the manner in which they acquitted themselves. Liberal Thanksgivings offerings were made, and the services were of a most impressive nature. The fund for the completion of the Church.

SHANNONVILLE was the scene of several lively episodes last Saturday afternoon, the occasion of the township fair. Chief GUNYON was present on his duties as constable for the Reserve, in order, to prevent, if possible any infraction of the Indian Act. Nicholas Marle, an Indian, who resides at present in Belleville, was charged with being drunk and disorderly, and the Chief proceeded to arrest him. Resistance was offered, not only by the prisoner, but by some of his companions. The prisoner was, however, overcome by the Chief, but when he was holding him down, waiting for a carriage, Mary Marle, the prisoner's wife, came up and threatened to draw a revolver held at bay several other Indians who threatened to rescue the prisoner. The Chief was obliged to arrest him and with her husband was carried to Deseronto by Marrian's rig and lodged in the lock-up. The trial of the Marle case before Commissioner McCullough, much of the evidence being of an extremely sensational character, the parties refused to give the names of the witnesses from whom they had got the firework. On Wednesday morning the Commissioner passed the following sentence: Nicholas Marle to 30 days in goal for drunkenness and 14 days additional for refusing to inform where he got the liquor. Mary Marle to 30 days in goal for drunkenness and 14 days additional for assaulting the constable. Should this sum be not paid forthwith, she will be incarcerated for an additional 30 days.

ON Wednesday the Chief arrested A. F. Redick on the strength of a telegram from Napanee. He had broken a rig and abused a horse belonging to Hatch and Haley, of Napanee. Constable Hooper took the prisoner to Napanee.

WORK on the temporary market building is nearly completed. The platform has been erected, and the general expression of opinion is that the building is a very fine one. The proclamation will soon be issued declaring the establishment of the market. The market is thought to be an excellent movement which must benefit Deseronto.

ON Friday last while working at Mr. Jas. German's in Tyendinaga, Harry Abbot got his finger caught in the cylinder of a threshing machine, and sprained it severely, necessitating its application two inches above the elbow. It was attended by Drs. Clinton and Rosser, and at last accounts was doing well.

THE TRIBUNE unites with a host of friends, wishing the newly wedded pair all happiness and prosperity. Mr. Emerson had the privilege of 14 pupils present; Miss Porter 40; Miss Richards 44; Miss Johnson 65; Miss Forfar 78. The secretary's statement that between 80 and 90 pupils are to be seen in the primary school, is not far from the mark. The present year is the greatest number in that room. That number is altogether too large, and another teacher is necessary to enable the teachers in the two primary rooms.

FRIDAY, OCT. 16, 1885.

Lord Salisbury announces that Parliament will be dissolved on November 17th. The coming election promises to be the most exciting ever held in the British Isles, and by many it is thought that the issue will be doubtful. The Toronto Mail on a review of the situation thinks that the Liberals will win, and certainly all the indications lead to such a conclusion. In Ireland it is thought that of 108 seats, Parnell will carry 90, while the remaining 18 will be divided between the Liberals and Conservatives. Scotland is a rural to the core and it is thought that only three Conservatives will be returned in that country. Wales is like Scotland, only more so, and it is thought will return a solid Liberal vote. The great struggle will be in England where all hinges on the agricultural vote with great probabilities of its being given to Mr. Gladstone to whom the laborers owe the franchise.

The Mail in a late editorial throws a copious quantity of cold water on the Imperial Federation movement which was gaining considerable headway among many people in this country. The Mail is discreet enough to perceive that with Imperial Federation the manufacturers of the Dominion would soon find themselves brought face to face with the competition of British manufacturers and that the National Policy would soon be no more. However desirable Imperial Federation would be for the farmers of Canada, to whom it would be almost as great a boon as reciprocity with the United States, to the manufacturers it would mean ruin. Our manufacturers at present control parliament and hence this sudden change of attitude on the question. The Governor General in his recent speech in British Columbia also throws cold water on the Federation movement. "Let well enough alone" is now to be the motto. People however are never satisfied in these progressive days with that old maxim, and it is altogether probable that in a few years the great issue will be independence versus the present state of British connection.

YOUNG PEOPLES CONCERT.—The young people of the Methodist Church will give one of their popular Concerts in the Church, on Wednesday evening next, Oct. 21st. A splendid programme is being prepared.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Michael Davitt on Saturday delivered a very significant address, in which while he supported Parnell's policy for the electoral campaign, he strongly urged the Irish people to reopen the Land League fight.

The two Indians charged with the murder of George Dill, of Hildesheim, N. W., during the recent troubles in that region, were tried at Battleford on Saturday, found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged.

A prominent citizen living a few miles from the city of Oswego, N. Y., is charged with gathering the bodies of deceased animals from the canal and surrounding country and boiling their flesh, on which he has been fattening hogs and selling the fattened animals for food. The Oswego Board of Health will investigate the matter.

A despatch from Tangiers says that Sergt. McHugh, a retired British artilleryman living there has just committed murder. He first killed the woman, he was living with, and then ran amuck through the streets stabbing many persons and fatally wounding two. He was finally captured and gaoled.

Mr. Parnell, speaking in Killarney, Ireland, referred in terms of highest praise to Archbishop Walsh and Croke. The former, he said, was one of the strongest supporters that Providence had given to Ireland, while Archbishop Croke's services were known to all. The stand they had taken proved the union of the priests and people. In regard to boycotting he said the practice was pursued judiciously by the Irish leaders and that they disavowed it.

Careful calculations show that at the Conservatives in France will probably number about 210 in the new Chamber. Mr. Clemenceau's party 124, and the Republicans of other shades 250. Mr. Clemenceau's position therefore will be somewhat like Mr. Parnell's in England. Mr. Parnell by uniting upon any important division with either party may turn the scales as he likes. It is but too probable that he will use his tactics such a way as to render any stable Government majority impossible.

The potato rot I am sorry to say is very general all through the country. Some farmers have lost all their potatoes and others will save only about one third or one fourth of their crop. It is a great disaster as there was a magnificent crop this year and many had planted very extensively. The Potato blight has inspired one of our local poets who well remembers the effects of the blight in Ireland in 1847. I send you the following for publication in our Read news:-

THE POTATO BLIGHT.
Yes, it was a time that can ne'er be forgot
The bad heavy years of the blight and the rot.
It was the hard times, forty seven and eight
We had no potatoes to sell or to eat.
Such a chill damp mist, just at evening was soon
That robbed the plant of their strength and their green.
A dismal cold air, and an ill smelling fog
That brooded o'er low lying country and bog.
Though years have passed by, my tears would still fall,
If now I attempted the scenes to recall,
When hunger and fever marched hand in hand,
And death and despair seemed kings of the land.
Then I have seen the strong man so worn and so weak,
His lips could not tell, but his eyes still could speak,
And they told such a tale of horror and pain.
This moment I almost can see them again.
The poor mother with pale death in her eye,
Clasped her weak babe in her sickly embrace,
And moaned as the child with vain wailing cry,
Clutched at her bosom, now shrivelled and dry.
Many such thoughts came into my head,
When I heard the rot in Tyndinaga had spread,
But thanked the good Lord though hardly we fare,
It don't mean to us either death or despair.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. W. G. EGAR, our enterprising druggist has received the agency for the truly celebrated West's Pain King, a certain cure for all bowel difficulties, colic, cholera morbus and cholera. Only 25 cents.

DEMORESTVILLE.
From an occasional Correspondent.
The fall is here and soon dread winter will be here in all its severity. The beautiful green leaves are fast assuming a golden hue and falling to the ground to be scattered in all directions by the wind.
Hop-picking is ended for the season and threshing is now the order of the day and the steam whistles are heard in all directions but the yield of grain is not what was anticipated a short time ago. Prices are low and this makes people wear long faces.
The fairs have taken up public attention lately. Our county fair was held in Picton on the 14th inst. but owing to rain the second day the attendance was small. The show was a good one and if the weather had proved favorable it would no doubt have been the best ever held in the county. The show of stock was splendid; the display of horses, colts and ponies was fine especially the imported Percherons of Messrs. Baker and Girty. Our townsman, Mr. J. W. Crawford, made a magnificent display of sewing machines and his knitting machine. After a critical examination the judges awarded him the first prize for his sewing machine, which has now become more popular than ever.
The great event of this week will be our own fair here which promises to be the best ever held in the township if the weather should prove favorable.

A PARTY consisting of Messrs. F. W. Powell, Herbert B. Rathbun and Thomas Haffman made a raid on the hickory groves of Solmesville and despite the presence of huge watch dogs carried off a large quantity of hickory nuts which are there found in vast numbers. They have placed a bushel or two to dry in the new dry kiln, preparatory to their presentation to the TRIBUNE.

MR. PETER HUFFMAN, proprietor of the Hoffman House, Nanapan, was charged with an infraction of the Indian liquor law by selling liquor to Louis Loft, an Indian of the Reserve. The trial came off on Saturday before Police Commissioner McCullough and the Reeves. Mr. Bedford appeared for the prosecution and Mr. Madden for the accused. After hearing the evidence the Commissioner fined the accused fifty dollars and costs.

A PROCLAMATION has been issued by the Reeve declaring the Free Market open. The by-law will be published in a few days giving the regulations by which it will be governed. It will be held daily and it is trusted that it will be cordially supported by all classes of our citizens, and extensively patronized by the farmers of the surrounding country. Prices of produce have always ruled higher in Deseronto than in any town in the Bay district and our agricultural friends will therefore find it to their advantage to bring in their produce.

REV. G. A. ANDERSON among my interesting relics in his possession has a silver tomahawk which was presented to his father, for many years Indian Superintendent, by the Mohawk chiefs. It is a handsome piece of workmanship, on one side of the blade being the picture of an Indian encampment, while on the other are a bear, wolf and turtle, the emblems of the Mohawk nation. The inscription reads "Presented to Capt. T. G. Anderson by the Mohawk Chiefs, Tyendinaga, 1858." Capt. Anderson who occupied a prominent position in the early history of the country died at Port Hope in 1875 at the advanced age of 96 years.

The Grand Trunk authorities have placed a handsome new Pullman first-class car on Nos. 3 and 4 passenger trains plying between Toronto and Montreal. The Pullman surplus any other coach room are also connected with each car, while they are heated with hot water. The first-class cars are equal to the old Pullman cars being finely upholstered and very comfortable. The cost of each of the new trains is $78,000. These improvements mark a new departure in Grand Trunk management.

The market opened most auspiciously yesterday morning. After the notice of the opening was short and the weather during the past few days most dismal rendering it almost impossible to disseminate intelligence there was a good attendance. Farmers and business men were alike delighted and all unite in declaring their conviction that Deseronto market is a grand success from the start.

MR. HOPKINS, of Oswego, has been busy this week measuring Central Park previous to making important changes in its appearance. We learn that it is Mr. Rathbun's intention to have it nicely laid off with flower beds and winding walks besides being ornamented with handsome shade trees thus rendering it in every sense a park and recreation ground. These changes will greatly add to the appearance of Deseronto and will be hailed with satisfaction by all our residents.

SOLMESVILLE has lost one of its fairest daughters in the marriage of Lillie Margaret Solmes, daughter of Dr. B. Solmes, Esq., of Deseronto. Mr. George Clinton M. D., of Deseronto. The marriage took place on Wednesday morning at the residence of the bride's father, Solmesville. A large number of immediate friends and relatives were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. T. Stanton, B. A., Rector of St. Mark's, Deseronto. The bride looked charming and wore a cream silk dress with white veil, white wreath and orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Laura Guest, of London, while the groom had for his best man Mr. Fred. W. Powell, of Ottawa. After the wedding party a sumptuous dinner was served. The wedding party subsequently came down on the "Gipsy" to Toronto, and took the noon express for the four-to-Montreal. The stmr "Hero" broke her crosshead on Wednesday on her way to Kingston. She resumed her trips yesterday.

According to the by-law regulating the new market all articles of produce brought into Deseronto must be exposed for sale on the market and not elsewhere.

Mr. JOHN DALTON has been receiving some large importations of furniture of a superior character. A visit to his warehouses will repay intending customers.

The person who lately removed a briar pipe from the Central Office is requested to return the same. As he is known, he will be prosecuted unless the property is returned.

The electors of Tyendinaga, Southampton, Richmond, Frederickburg and Deseronto, have only to show a determined front and two bridges will soon span the bay in this vicinity.

READ Goodmurphy's advertisement. He has determined on making a crash in the boot and shoe as well as in the ready-made clothing line. You will find it to your advantage to give him a call.

MISS DALTON has just received a new lot of hats, exceedingly cheap and in all the latest shades. Ladies are invited to call and inspect. As will be seen by advertisement she has also completed her large stock of dry goods and millinery and as the goods were all personally selected she can easily guarantee them to be as represented.

THREE or four workmen including Joseph Arch are candidates for parliament at the approaching elections in England and will be elected. We should have few working men in our Dominion parliament; but then our working men would prefer being wheeled by some designing lawyer rather than support one of their own numbers.

The Executive of the Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada concluded its half-yearly session in Toronto last Thursday. It was decided to issue a circular to Presbyteries of Ontario and Quebec, asking for the sum of $36,000 during the ensuing year, for the augmentation of the benevolent fund.

The Oswego Times of the 13th says: "There was quite a party on the bridge this morning watching the steam barge Reliance which was coming in from Kingston with lumber. There was a heavy sea running but the steamer made excellent weather of it and came into port in good style. The Reliance was about the only vessel which got in this morning."

WE DIRECT the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. G. E. Fraser to be found in another column. Mr. Fraser is well known as one of the energetic and extensive merchants of the Bay district. He has removed his branch store to Meagher's old stand on St. George street where he offers excellent bargains in dry goods at prices truly startling. Call and inspect for yourselves.

The members of Deseronto Court, I.O.F., having assembled last night last Sunday evening, held their annual meeting in the morning, marched in procession to the Methodist Church, where the Rev. D. O. Crossley preached an able and appropriate sermon from the text "Examine as ye have done it into one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." There was a good turn out of the members who excelled themselves in the singing and in the service on the occasion.

A SAD and fatal accident occurred near West Huntington on Monday. On the day mentioned Mr. Allen Kellar, a well-to-do farmer of Huntington Township went to a farm of his in the neighborhood of the one he lives upon for the purpose of hauling in some lumber which was in the field. His wife accompanied him. On the return trip both the farmer and his wife were on the load. In passing along the road the wheels on one side got out of the roadway and an upset resulted. In the fall Mrs. Kellar's neck was broken, causing instant death. The unfortunate accident was regretted in the neighborhood to which Mrs. Kellar belonged, as she was highly esteemed. Her remains were followed to their last resting place on Wednesday by a large gathering of friends.

ALL our people are now aroused to the necessity of the early erection of bridges, connecting this ill-fated village with the opposite shore of Frederickburg and Prince Edward. We venture to say that these undertakings would do more to make trade and improve the bay district than any other movements that could be undertaken. We advise the early calling of a public meeting in Deseronto to which the delegates of adjacent municipalities and members of the Dominion Parliament and Local Legislature of this district should be invited. The local Legislature might be asked to contribute largely to the erection of these bridges, and Dominion aid would also, we believe, be willing to contribute. These ridings during the last few years from parliament. Let our people vote for a pretty penny bickerings and note in denouncing some paternal government, and next spring will find representatives coming home like their brethren in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces with handsome appropriations for the first bridges over the Bay of Quinte.

Old papers of all shades of politics for sale at this office.

BELLEVILLE is desirous of railway communication with El Dorado and the C. P. R. Candidates for municipal honors must be prepared to adopt vigorous and progressive measures if they hope to be elected this year. King Theobald, of Burnham, still continues to defy the British authorities. There is a demand for British occupation of that country.

We hope that the Council are considering the propriety of submitting a by-law for securing the necessary sum for the erection of suitable town and market buildings. They need not fear the ratepayers, who will not hesitate to grant the amount necessary to provide Deseronto with public buildings suitable to its importance. No more procrastination.

AN ENTERTAINING DRUGGIST.

It is with much pleasure we announce to our readers that Mr. W. G. EGAR, our wide-awake Chemist and druggist, has secured the agency of the celebrated West's Cough Syrup. This is a compound that has stood the test of a quarter of a century, and its un-failing and certain cure for all throat and lung troubles. It will relieve a cough like magic, and the proprietors have thousands of the most flattering testimonials from sufferers that have been cured of that dread disease, consumption, in its early stages, bronchitis, asthma, &c. Price, 25, 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

CHILD CARRIED OFF BY AN EAGLE.

Last Saturday morning as the wife of Jean Baptiste Komily, a farmer in St. Vincent de Paul, a village about ten miles from Montreal, was feeding her fowl, while her child, aged about two years, was playing around, suddenly a large bald eagle swooped down and bore the little one off in his talons. The child screamed, put out its arms to its mother who was beside herself with mental agony, but was powerless to render assistance. The screams of the child, however, attracted the neighbors, who with shotguns pursued the eagle. The bird was seen to alight with its prey upon the roof of a barn a mile distant. Lifting up its head with one powerful stroke it drove its beak into the child's head and then began its horrid feast. At the near approach of the neighbors, who were firing guns to frighten it, the eagle took flight, leaving the child behind. When the body was recovered life was extinct. The all was split in two, and a part had been devoured.

QUEBEC.

Westward, still westward onwards now I
steal,
And coast the shores of Lawrence, mighty
stream.
Past gay Cacouna—gloomy Saguenay—
Past verdant banks, past rising towns I go,
Past smiling hamlets with their glittering
spire,
Shining as did of yore that "Cloud of Fire," Shining by night to guide "God's chosen
band,"
Through the drear desert to their promised Land.

The cloud no longer guides—cross crown'd
spires rise
In every hamlet upward to the skies.
Here day by day the bell to Matins calls,
Both high and low within these holy walls—
Listen to what their mighty Lord commands.

How they by Faith must, gain the promised
lands,
Not earthly lands 'to them, is promise
given,
But brighter, fairer far—The Lands of Heaven.

Onwards I go past many a lovely spot,
Past handsome villa and past lowly cot,
Nestling 'mid orchards rich in summer's
bloom,
White gay parterres exhale their sweet perfume.

And now a step from the trim steamer's
deck,
And tread thy shore—Historical Quebec—
Standing now on "Diamond's" crowning height,

I gaze with rapture on the glorious sight:
Below whose fane Saint Lawrence mighty
sides
On whose broad bosom countless vessels
ride,
Their varied flags floating in the summer
air.

For bargues from every clime are gathered
here;
They are not here to hurl the deadly ball;
They are come as brothers at fair commerce
call,
From southern lands where warmer summers
shine,
Their waters to change for those of colder
clime.

Where 'cross the stream, yon slender spires
rise,
'Mid verdant groves, suburban Levis lies.
'Twas up yon rugged steep on Lawrence
strand,
In days gone by, Wolfe led his gallant
band,
Marshall'd Britannia's host on Abraham's
plains.

Where brave Montcalm Gaul's prior right
maintains.
I'll not repeat the oft told tale or tell
How both brave leaders in that combat fell;
Their deeds are written on the scroll of Fame,
And History's page records each glorious name.

Who fought that day—In peace their ashes
rest,
They won for Britain—Empire in the West.
A hundred years are past—Britannia's gentle sway;
Their steps have guided on in Freedom's
way,
And Freedom dwells here—firm as Diamond's
rock;
By Britons grafted upon Gallic stock.

As from the frowning ramparts I look down,
Is this Quebec? or some old Norman Town?
Is this narrow strait—the gulch I see?
This must be sure some town in Normandy,
The British flag waves in the summer air,
At every turn a foreign tongue I hear.
I ask a sturdy peasant—Till he replies,
Are ye now slaves, and foreign Lords obey?
Quickly he turns on me his flashing eyes,
White on his cheek an angry flush now lies;
We are not slaves but free—no change we seek,
"Our hearts are British, tho' in French we speak."

Farwell Quebec—I must no longer stay,
A restless spirit hurries me away.
Again I tread the road for better things,
Farwell forever—Hurricane Quebec.

REGULAR CONVOCATION OF THE B. H. C.

CLUB ROOM, OCT. 17th, 1885.

Meeting opened in due and ancient form
the Venerable on the stool of Judgment.
The G. O. M. second unusually groggy and thoughtful, going through the preliminaries
with more than ordinary care and impressiveness. The cause was apparent, as visible emotion he adverted to the serious loss the club sustained in the recent withdrawal of
two of its most prominent members.
While in the course of his remarks, he
theretofore he regretted the circumstances which compelled such a step he could only
hope that in the eternal fitness of things,
the poor unfortunate might regain a fair portion of their anticipations. He was strong in the conviction that the principles
inculcated during their membership would go far towards enabling them to meet the many new and varied experiences which their position would present in a manner
alike creditable to themselves and the institution. He would ask the brethren to think of them in all kindness and charity,
and never forgetting that "to err is human,"
The "Judge" nodded approval, and with a characteristic flourish of his bandana remarked, that at the best we were but frail
mortals and easily led astray. The erring ones had his most profound sympathy.

The "Ancient" was observed several times indulging in an inward chuckle—and he now arose with unusual expertness and said, that personally he did not care to allow to enthrone very copiously in commiserating the fate of the unfortunate. They had reposed in the protecting arms of this club, had been surrounded with all those influences which have fitted them to become members to the grave professions.

They had deliberately exchanged all this
verifying the old adage—give a donkey rope, &c., &c. It was their own funeral and they thought the club justified in washing its hands of the whole affair. A requiem was then chanted and the deliberations ordered to be held.

The "Judge" wished to call the attention
of the brethren to the grave reflection cast
on our Venerable, through their recent remarks
of the "Ancient." Was common curiosity
to be thus sharply criticized for simple motives so grossly misconstrued? Could not the proceeding referred to have for its object other than that conveyed in the insultation? Might not that mighty intellect have been just then exercising its functions
in the promotion of some great social reform? Under any character of the individual knowledgeable character of the individual presentation, and it was in the hands of the club to vindicate its position, and with its whole weight "sit" upon the perpetrator of the slander—Cheer.

The Venerable thanked the brethren for this expression of feeling, but hoped to have but little trouble in living down all such attempts on his integrity.

The "Ancient" again asked the indulgence of the brethren in his second attempt at the muse, a short unpretentious poem, on which, however, he had spent many valuable hours.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO THE D.C.C.
The day is declining, 'mid purple and blue,
Old Sol in the West slowly sinks from the view.
Our labor is ended, our spirits free!
For now to the West of the D. C. C.

CHORUS
Then ho! for a cruise on our beautiful bay,
To squander the moments light hearted and gay,
While the light laughing ripples dance gayly along.

Will add to their music our laughter and song.
The "Judge" suddenly rose to a point of order, and he forcibly reminded the brethren
of the sentiment embodied in the poetry just read was all right, but he could not understand why originality could not be blended with common sense in music. What was the object in taking so much trouble to tell us the sun sank in the west? Did the aged poet mean to convey that old and respectable luminary was in the habit of setting occasionally in the east or the north? He hoped the brother would take it up again with a fresh hue.

The "Ancient" faded cheek slightly colored as he indignantly flung back the question and aesthetically declared that the club was incapable of appreciating anything
but its grub.

Indiscriminate adjournment.

OUR YOUNG MEN OF THE FU-TURE.

Who will be the shining lights that shall illumine this world by their brightness, who

greater activities, who the sound practical determined to win. Men of chivalry, in whom we shall behold that polite deference

to rule and sex, that "manly sentiment,"
that subordination of the body which will keep alive, even in bondage itself, the spirit
of an exalted freedom.

We hope to see our standing first in the ranks of Canada's heroes, and proving yourselves worthy the name of men, in whom
may be found that "depth of principle,"
that chastity of honor, which will inspire
with a wound, which will inspire
which will enable whatever it touches under which will mill low itself its evil by losing
half its grossness."

THOSE CLEVER GREEKS.

If a tapering monument, like that on Bunker Hill or like the obelisk in Central Park, were made with the perfectly straight stone, it would look to us—so we would really cannot trust our own eyes—as if it were hollowed in a little, or, as we should say in more scientific language, its sides
would appear concave. Those clever Greeks, thought all this out, and made their architecture upon principles so subtle and so comprehensive that we have never been able to improve on them since. They found that their beautiful Doric columns, if made with straight sides, had the concave effect of which I have spoken; and so, with the most delicate art in the world they make the pillar
swell a little at the middle, and then it appears exactly right. The swelling of the column at its middle was called entasis. Of course, it had to be calculated with the greatest nicety, and was actually so very slight that it can only be detected by delicate measurements; but it added greatly to the beauty of the columns and to their effectiveness. Then the lines which were to look horizontal had to receive attention. If you look at a long, perfectly level line, as
the edge of a roof, for instance, it has the appearance of sagging towards the middle.
The Greek architect corrected this fault by making his line rise a little. The minds of the Parthenon, at Athens, is 101 feet 31
inches long, and in this the rise from the horizontal is about 21 inches. The result is that there is a curvature upward that makes it a little more than two inches higher in the centre than at the ends, and the effect of this swelling upward is to make the lines
appear perfectly level. Indeed this same Parthenon—the most beautiful building in the world—when delicately and carefully
measured was found to be everywhere made a little incorrect, so that it may appear, but
which is certainly an architectural paradox.
The Greeks had a sense of the mind of
so straight, are made to lean inward a little,
since if they were perfectly true and plumb
they would lose the effect of leaning outward. The pillars at the corners of the wards more than the others, and everywhere the corners are made to look square
by being in truth a little broader angle.—
